VISIT THE BUILDINGS, FACILITIES AND OTHER CAMPUS LANDMARKS ASSOCIATED WITH THE COLLEGE OF HUMANITIES, ARTS, AND SOCIAL SCIENCES.

4 WATKINS HALL

After leaving Sproul, take a right then an immediate left to pass beneath the “swiss cheese” concrete wall of Watkins Hall. Watkins is one of the five original campus buildings (1953) and is home to the departments of Anthropology, Sociology, and Political Science, as well as to one of the campus’ several computer labs (featuring printers, software and both MAC and PC computers).

5 OLMSTEAD HALL

Take a right on the next walkway and travel the length of Watkins Hall. Directly ahead of you is Olmstead Hall, to the right, the University Theatre. Olmstead is the home of the University Honors Program and Office of Undergraduate Business Programs. The University Theatre is UCR’s main venue for musical and theatrical performances.

6 PSYCHOLOGY

Beyond the Olmstead Arches is the brand new Psychology Building. The Psychology building houses academic and departmental offices, research laboratories, and open class laboratories.

7 8 CARILLON MALL

Retrace your steps and bear right towards the arches of the Rivera Library. Stroll the length of the walkway beneath the iconic arches. Up ahead you’ll find the Bell Tower and, beyond that, the new Highlander Union Building (HUB). Continue straight ahead, and just past the HUB, you’ll find the UCR Campus Store.

9 NORTH CAMPUS DRIVE

Continue ahead to North Campus Drive. Straight ahead you will see the construction site for UCR’s new Materials Science and Engineering Building. Go left. On your right you’ll see athletic fields (softball, soccer, and track) and, off in the distance, the Student Recreation Center – the home venues for several Highlander teams (“Take Pride in R’Side!”).

10 ARTS BUILDING

When you reach Canyon Crest Drive, take a left and the Arts Building will be on your right. The Arts Building is a magnificent, one-of-a-kind facility that has won several awards for its architecture. Our fine arts program has received generous grants from the Gluck Foundation and includes majors in theatre, music, dance, art, and art history.

2 HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES BUILDING – Home for the CHASS advising offices as well as the departments of History, English, Philosophy, and Foreign Languages, which offers instruction in 14 different languages. The complex is also home to UCR’s unique pre-business program. Exit the Humanities and Social Sciences plaza the same way you entered and take an immediate right along the walkway beneath the pillars.

3 SPROUL HALL – Next on the right is Sproul Hall. Sproul contains the Department of Economics as well as the Graduate School of Education, (recognized as the Nation’s Most Distinguished Teacher Education Program). In the basement of Sproul, you’ll find our state-of-the-art television studio.

11 CHASS INTERDISCIPLINARY BUILDING – Located directly across from the Arts Building is the CHASS Interdisciplinary Building, which opened its doors in 2007. It houses six departments (Religious Studies, Women’s Studies, Media & Cultural Studies, Ethnic Studies, Creative Writing, and Theatre), several interdisciplinary programs, and the UCR media library.

1 STUDENT SERVICES BUILDING (SSB) – Continue straight ahead towards Hinderaker and then go left to the Student Services Building – the building where your tour began. The SSB houses the offices of admissions, financial aid, the cashier, the registrar, undergraduate recruitment, and campus tours. It also includes the convenient Highlander One-Stop Shop (HOSS).

This completes your CHASS campus tour. You may want to take a moment to stop in at the HUB to grab a bite to eat. Or feel free to wander around the rest of the campus, take a full campus tour, and learn more fun facts about UCR and its facilities.
